

Nicola's expecting!

WELL-KNOWN South African supermodel Nicola Breytenbach has always been known for being super slinky-malinky. At the SA Style Awards last year she wore a clinging low-cut dress that left little to the imagination ... but who knew she was about six weeks pregnant at the time? This is a girl who, if she ate a grape, it would show up to three weeks later! After her wedding to US businessman Ben Steiner it was time to have a baby. She wanted to keep the first few months of her pregnancy low key and after the move to New York she and her husband have decided to take a house in the Hamptons and relax with the new arrival. After that the pair will be coming to Cape Town, which has seen its share of celebrities in the past week. Mariah Carey has been causing chaos in the normally stoic Mother City and Sharon Stone dropped in for tea at the Bishop's Court home of Archbishop Desmond Tutu. I would love to have been a fly on the wall during that conversation. What, do you think, do the various international celebs visiting this country think about all the political