WE'RE so used to seeing South African model Nicola Breytenbach at her best, that when we got a glimpse of her looking rather ordinary, we were left speechless. In a rather frumpy dress, no bra, and what seems to have been a bad hair day, the star was seen shopping at the V&A Waterfront in Cape Town – and while we know Cape Town is pretty chilled out compared to Joburg, and we know that even models are allowed to have casual days every now and again, we didn't expect her to look like a French maid – gone wrong! Let's just say, we expected more from the New York resident, who spends her days socialising with the Trump family!
